Worthy of Action!

AT a recent law banquet tendered in honor of Very Rev. President Bernard P. O'Reilly, S.M., and Honorable Robert C. Patterson, Dean of the College of Law, a suggestion was put forth that is worthy of consideration. It was advanced that inasmuch as our College of Law has now been functioning for eight years, graduating five classes, it is opportune for the law graduates, particularly of Dayton, to consider organizing a U of D Law Club.

As an alumni movement such a club is heartily endorsed by the Alumni Association of the University of Dayton, and the Alumni Office stands ready to assist in organizing a U of D Law Club of Dayton, if such an organization is desired. The Alumni Association of the University of Dayton is an organization of graduates and former students of U of D, which seeks to promote the welfare of the University and to encourage the interest of the alumni in the University and in each other. It attempts to carry out these aims through the ALUMNUS, the organization of classes and local clubs, the maintenance of the central Alumni Office for alumni service and information, the maintenance of up-to-date address lists and alumni data, the executing of Home Comings and Commencement activities, and numerous other alumni undertakings. It further encourages the formation of alumni social and study clubs. Such clubs help to perpetuate college contacts after graduation and also work to the mutual benefit of the alumni through the discussion of topics of common interest. The first club of this nature to be formed was the U of D Engineers Club of Dayton, which meets regularly during the winter months. Such clubs, when working in cooperation with the Alumni Association in its endeavors and undertakings, exist not only for the benefit of the alumni but also for the welfare of their old school, the University of Dayton. With some seventy-three U of D law graduates residing in Dayton a U of D Law Club should undoubtedly become a very active and thoroughly interesting alumni unit.

Help Construct!

THROUGHOUT the year frequent requests come from the Alumni Office to the alumni to send us the yearly dues. With our multitudinous daily duties it is truly an easy matter to put aside a statement and thenceforth commit it to oblivion, although we fully intend to pay. Accidentally we do however sometimes come across that unpaid bill which we thought had been disposed of. Just another oversight? So for this reason we must be persistent in our unpleasant task of reminding the alumni of the yearly payment of alumni dues. The question is not that we need the dues to carry on our alumni activities in an organized manner. Rather the question is that we must have the support, moral and financial by yearly dues, of each alumnus in order to maintain present activities, to put the Alumni Association on a sound basis, and to branch out into new and larger fields of endeavor for the benefit of you and your old school. It is merely that we must build, and together we can build, strongly and firmly now and realize achievements in the future.

Strong organization means power and accomplishment. Were you an active, constructive alumni member during 1930? Were you, or were you not, a builder?

The Alumnus and His College

IT is rather a magnificent thought to one who is a member of a college community to feel that the college at hand is but the symbol of the interest and concern of thousands of alumni scattered over the earth. It thrills one to think that a piece of news bringing information of new achievement, progress, or deed well done will quicken the hearts of all the graduates, and it makes one realize as well the pain and chagrin that come to these same hearts when the news of something unfavorable is reported. The success or non-success of athletic teams brings only ripples of pleasure or disappointment; serious letters begin to pour in to college officials only when alumni believe that changes in policy and administration are concerned. And while the college is the alma mater to its undergraduates it stands perhaps in the position of a favorite child to the alumni, and each alumnus who concerns himself with an expression of opinion regards the college as a thing distinctly his own. The sum total of this individual feeling of ownership marks the college as a symbol upon which is focused the attention and regard of all the alumni.

And in saying that the college is the alumni one quickly disposes of a number of trite phrases such as "if it were not for the alumni we could do this or that," or "the alumni are a great nuisance," or "the alumni care only for football tickets." One need only edit an alumni publication and read the letters which come to the office—letters which do not find their way into the "letter column" because of requests on the part of the writers. These letters for the most part show the greatest concern

Civil Engineers Meet - New Clubs - Christmas Holidays

CIVIL ENGINEERS MEET

The Student Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers held a meeting in the lecture room of the Library on Thursday November 6 at eleven o'clock.

A lantern lecture on "Flood Control in the Miami Valley Conservancy District" was read by H. Valiquette and M. Busciglio. This lecture treated the work and methods used in constructing the five dams in this project. These jobs are the Englewood, Lockington, Germantown, Huffman and Taylorsville Dams.

On Monday November 10 the Student Chapter attended the November meeting of the Dayton Chapter at the Engineers' Club.

NEW MUSIC CLUBS

The Music Department has issued an invitation to all students who are musically inclined to take an interest in the orchestra that is being formed. This organization is making great strides under the able direction of Mr. Reichard.

This is destined to become an integral part of the Department, for a public appearance in the near future has been arranged. With the orchestra as a nucleus two other organizations are in the embryo: the banjo club and the glee club. The first rehearsal of the Banjo Club was attended by a respectable delegation. The Glee Club, although not meeting with the same success, gave every manifestation of enjoying a successful season.

U of D CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS

The Christmas Holidays at the University of Dayton begin officially at three o'clock Friday afternoon December 19. The holidays end for boarding students at 11:50 P. M., Sunday January 4. Class work will be resumed on the fifth at the regular hour of eight o'clock. And that latter hour brings the holiday period to an end for the non-resident students.

COLLEGE NEWSPAPER MEET

The fall convention of the Ohio College Newspaper Association was held Friday and Saturday December 5 and 6, at Ohio University, Athens, and was attended by Editor Art Routzong and Business Manager John Connelly of THE U. D. NEWS.

Close to fifty delegates representing fifteen Ohio colleges and universities, which are members of the Association, were on hand for the two-day session. The local representatives were quite active. Connelly served on the Resolutions Committee and Routzong on the Contest Committee.

DEBATERS SPEAK TWICE

The excellent work of Barth Snyder and Ernest Levit was easily the outstanding feature of the first debate of the season, held Wednesday evening December 3, between the University of Dayton and the University of Akron, at the Albert Emanuel Library. The question was "Resolved, That this state should adopt a system of compulsory unemployment insurance."

The second debate of the season was held December 10 between an affirmative Toledo U. team and a negative Dayton team and, as the first contest, took place at the Library. The Dayton team was composed of John Connelly and Francis Pfister.

The debates were no-decision affairs, that is, there were no judges to give an official result, a practice followed in many schools.

PRE-MED LECTURE

Members of the Pre-Medical Department of the University of Dayton attended the meeting of the Montgomery County Medical Society December 5, held at the Fidelity Medical Building Auditorium. The speaker of the evening was Dr. Ralph A. Kinsella, head of the Department of Medicine, St. Louis University, St. Louis, Missouri. The subject taken by Dr. Kinsella was "Studies of Rheumatism." Dr. Kinsella has made a complete study of this subject and presented it in a very interesting manner.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS ACTIVE

During the past several weeks the Electrical Department has had the privilege of viewing some of the latest films on engineering subjects. The first of these to be shown was one dealing with the life of Charles Steinmetz, the electrical wizard of the age. The picture treated of his life from early boyhood to the time of his death a few years ago. The second film was that of the Okonite Wire Co. The film treated the construction of all types of commercial wire and cable for use as electrical conductors. After the film had been shown the Department entered into lengthy discussion on the merits and defects of the manner in which Okonite Co. manufactures its products.

On December 1 a four-reel film showing the construction and operation of the Babcock and Wilcox boilers was viewed by an assembly of the Mechanical and Electrical Engineering Departments in the lecture room of the latter Department. The picture proved most interest-

Historical Sketch — 1860-1930

IN the spring of 1860 an addition was built to the east of the boarding school, sixty feet by thirty feet, and three stories high, greatly relieving the crowded situation.

In September, 1860, Brother Zehler was appointed director of St. Mary's Institute, and with his arrival there set in a period of prosperity which continued unbroken through his long administration. This was partly due to the raise in tuition. In the summer of 1861 the rate was raised from $80 to $120 a year, and still there was no decrease in numbers. The coming of Brother Zehler to Nazareth was a most definitive event in the history of the College. It marked the beginning of an expansion in building, in personnel, in activities of all kinds, which was to continue unbroken to the present day.

The prosperity of St. Mary's Institute increased year by year. The rate of tuition was again increased, and the numbers remained undiminished. There had been little expansion since the appointment of Brother Zehler in 1860, but he was only studying the situation and biding his time. His skill as a manager of men, his success as a teacher were already established, and now his native ability as a financier was to reveal itself.

In June, 1865, a new wing, costing $8,000, was added to the College. In 1867 the barn and the very substantial stable were erected at an expense of about $3,000. In 1868 the new chapel was begun and was completed in 1869. The building and the interior cost upwards of $40,000.

The next unit erected was the new College building, now known as St. Mary's Hall. In 1869 the number of pupils had reached 210, and every room was crowded. A new building was planned at once and completed in 1871, at a cost of $85,000. At that time it was by far the largest building in the city of Dayton, and people came from miles around to see the imposing structure. Even today, in an era of great buildings, it is still an impressive sight standing on the crest of the hill and rearing its four stories and mansard roof in stately proportions. Critics of those days called it folly to erect so large a building, but it was filled from the opening day. The entire College Department was transferred to the new hall. St. Mary's Institute has long since outgrown St. Mary's Hall of 1871, and has overflowed into other massive structures, but the most critical college men of today, with all their requirements and modern appliances, still find the building of fifty-nine years ago admirably adapted to modern college needs.

In 1874 the Gymnasium was built. It was not known by that name in those early days; it was the "playhouse" then. Indeed, there were few boarding schools of those days that could boast of a play-house. It has served its purpose well, and only too long to be very well.

No establishment of the Society of Mary in America could look upon such an unbroken record of prosperity as St. Mary's Institute under the direction of Father Reinbolt and Brother Zehler. Its success attracted the attention of the whole state. Its imposing array of buildings was as impressive as the enterprise they represented was successful.

The arrangement of the buildings was fortunate. They had all been erected according to a general scheme, perhaps not worked out in full and conscious detail, but, by force of following the crest of the hill in locating the larger buildings, there had resulted a certain symmetry and largeness in plan of which few suspected the future development.

Almost at the very acme of this prosperity came a most disastrous event. On Monday, December 10, 1883, the Normal School built in 1857 was completely destroyed by fire. The loss of the property was about $80,000, partly covered by insurance. The community affected by the fire numbered nearly two hundred. Every available space in the various buildings of the College Department was impressed into service.

The leisure hours of the remaining winter months were spent in clearing away the ruins, and by the opening of spring the ground was ready for building. The new St. Joseph's Hall was finished in 1885, and served as the Normal School of the Society of Mary until 1915, when the Normal School was transferred to Mount St. John, four miles east of Dayton. St. Joseph's Hall rises in majestic state on the edge of the plateau of Nazareth, in pleasing form, with lordly skyline and chateau-like setting, and all in perfect symmetry.

When the property of Nazareth was purchased in 1850, the city of Dayton was a half-mile to the northwest by the Lebanon Road, which formed the western boundary of the Brothers' property. The Woodland Cemetery, adjoining the northeastern side, completely and effectively separated the College domain from the eastern section of Dayton, but the city grew along the Lebanon Road, which was called Brown Street, and by 1880, the corporation limits has reached the Brothers' Lane, which leads to the College. One-third of the property was then in the city limits.

The large property to the south of Nazareth was the estate of the Patterson family, whose elegant homestead stood off the Lebanon Road. The Pattersons were for years the only neighbors of the Brothers, as they owned all the property on both sides of the Lebanon Road. They were very much devoted to Brother Zehler, and often came to ask his advice in later years, although in the earlier years of the Brothers it was the other way around, for the Brothers used to take lessons in American ways from the Pattersons. After 1870, Brother Zehler had made frequent overtures to buy the section of the property adjoining south, but with no success. At last a fortunate coincidence favored Brother Zehler.

On the re-building of the Normal School after the fire of 1883, the plans brought the St. Joseph's Hall within ten feet of the south property line, and it became all the more important to secure the adjoining field. It belonged to John H. Patterson, who achieved fame and fortune in the manufacture of cash registers. A few years previously Mr. Patterson had purchased the first model of the cash register with its patent rights and was making a few machines a month in a little rented factory in the city of Dayton. He needed capital to expand his business, and Brother Zehler needed the land to protect the Institute. Accordingly, "Patterson's field" was sold to the Brothers, and the cash price paid to Mr. Patterson was the beginning of his prosperity. With it he built his first factory on the commons facing the College property on Brown Street, and that building was the nucleus of one of the finest and largest and most prosperous manufacturing plants in the country, and one of the most effective means of making the name of Dayton, Ohio, known all over the world.

With the development of the cash register factory came also the expansion of the city to the south, and the entire property of St. Mary's Institute was soon within the corporation limits. In 1906, ten acres fronting the property on Brown Street were sold, and streets laid out. In 1909, a new railroad from Dayton to Cincinnati secured the right of way through the south side of the property, skirting the valley of the Rubicon Creek which flowed through the center of the Patterson field, now the site of the University of Dayton stadium.

The College Department was looking for new space for its junior department, and was expecting to overflow into the building of the Normal School as soon as that institution was removed. So in 1914 it was determined to remove the Normal School to the new property, now called Mount St. John, an estate of 101 acres, four miles east of Dayton.

The former home of the Normal School at Nazareth was immediately occupied by the junior department of St. Mary's College.

The heating plant of the University was erected in 1898, the Cafeteria in 1919, and a temporary class-room building in 1921.

After Brother Zehler was retired from office in 1876, the destinies of the University were guided by Rev. Francis Feith, 1876-1879; Rev. George Meyer, 1879-1886; Rev. John Harks, 1886-1888; Rev. Joseph Weckesser, 1888-1896; Rev. Charles Eichner, 1896-1902; Rev. Louis Tragesser, 1902-1908; and Rev. Bernard P. O'Reilly, 1908-1918. The greatest period of expansion occurred during the presidency of Rev. O'Reilly and that of Rev. Joseph A. Tetzlaff, president from 1918 to 1923. Since 1923 the U of D has been under the able direction of its former president, Rev. Bernard P. O'Reilly.

The name of St. Mary's Institute, in 1913, was changed to St. Mary's College and, in 1920, to the University of Dayton.

The University of Dayton, from its inception, has stood for the highest ideals in educational work and, at the same time, has endeavored to respond to the needs of the community by offering a curriculum of practical studies. The curriculum includes the classical, scientific and commercial courses. In 1882 the institution was incorporated and empowered to confer degrees.

The College of Engineering was organized in 1910, and now embraces four departments: Electrical, Chemical, Mechanical and Civil Engineering. The Pre-Medical Course was organized in 1918; the Department of Commerce and Finance in 1921; and the College of Law in 1922. Since 1921 the College of Arts and Letters has offered courses also in the evenings and on Saturday mornings. In 1923 a Summer School was organized for members of the teaching profession.

In 1918 a Students Army Training Corps unit was organized at the University at the request of the United States Government, in order to give the students the military and technical training required for admission into Officers' Training Camps. After the demobilization of this unit, a Reserve Officers Training Corps unit was organized with officers of the United States Army as instructors.

A completely equipped College Preparatory Department is conducted in connection with the College of Education. Both the College and Preparatory Departments are accredited to the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. The College is also a member of the Association of American Colleges.

The attendance of the University has steadily increased from year to year, particularly since 1900.

While the annual increase was normal, the Society of Mary was able to provide the additional accommodations required. During the past ten years, however, the University has had an unprecedented enrollment, and to meet the demands for expansion the alumni and friends are endeavoring to raise the necessary funds. The plans call for seven new buildings: two Dormitories, Science and Engineering Building, Auditorium, Gymnasium, Faculty Building, Library and Museum, Chapel Extension and Campanile, and Stadium. The realization of this project will keep the University of Dayton in the front ranks of Catholic colleges of the Middle West.

One of the proposed dormitories was opened in 1924. The Stadium was completed in 1925.

Through the generosity of Mr. Victor Emanuel, '15, the Albert Emanuel Library, named in honor of his father, was completed in June, 1928.

The primary object of the University is to impart to young men a thoroughly Christian education. Experience has only too amply proved that unless there be solid grounding in the principles of Christian morality, mere instruction will not suffice to deter men from evil. Hence every effort is made to inculcate sound principles and train the students to practice virtue, which will fit them to take their place in the Christian, civic and social world. The students are uniformly held to strict obedience, diligent application and blameless conduct. The discipline is, however, conservative in character and, therefore, appeals largely to the student's conscience and sense of honor. The University is Catholic in character, but it

COURT SEASON OPENS

ON Tuesday, December 16, Bill Belanich's Flyer basketball team opened its 1930-31 campaign in thrilling fashion at the Dayton Coliseum court by defeating Cedarville College, 23 to 22.

Entering upon his second year as coach of the Red and Blue hardwoods quintet Belanich is faced with the necessity of building a team almost completely from green material. To date he is working with a meager squad of nine players, seven of whom are sophomores. There are two seniors on the club, Ed Flanagan, guard, and "Ham" Lehnis, reserve forward on last year's five. Four of the seven sophomores are former members of the Dayton Chaminade High School team. After the Christmas vacation several other court prospects who figured largely on the football team and who earned a rest following the brilliant victory over Wittenberg on Thanksgiving Day, are expected to report for practice and may raise the hopes for a fair season.

In defeating Cedarville the Flyers beat practically the same club that turned back a veteran Dayton five in the inaugural tilt last season, 25-24. Belanich's opening lineup consisted of Flanagan and four sophomores. Jim Flynn of Toledo and the mite Pete Robbeloth were at the forwards, Charley Kronauge at center, and Flanagan and Eddie Hamant at the guards. Robbeloth, Kronauge and Hamant hail from Chaminade. Two others who saw service in the tilt were Lehnis and Gene Zimmerman, another sophomore and ex-Chaminade boy.

Cedarville led the entire distance until the last minute of play when the Flyers pulled the game off the fire. The first half was typical of an opening game, the Flyers being unable to locate the net and Cedarville staying out in front. The score at half time was 12-6 in favor of the visitors. For fifteen minutes of the second half Cedarville increased its lead and with only five minutes to play the visitors had what looked to be a commanding 21-10 margin. Then Zimmerman replaced Flanagan at guard and this substitution was the sign for a Flyer rally. Everyone began to find the hoop in rapid succession with Zimmerman showing the way by caging three long shots. His last basket, with a minute and ten seconds to play, won the game for the Flyers.

The brightest spot in the Flyers' play was their fine fighting spirit and their ability to come from behind when the cause seemed hopeless. Outside of this fact their exhibition was very ordinary but is bound to improve as the season progresses. The team lacks the size of a college quintet and naturally is short on experience. Whether it will be able to stand the gaff against the major opposition it must face after the Christmas holidays remains to be seen. The spirit on the squad is fine and the boys are all young and willing to learn, so Belanich may develop a first-class combination before the season ends, thus laying the groundwork for the next two years.

As this is being written the team is prepared to meet its second opponent, Defiance College, at the Coliseum on December 18. After this game the squad will disband until the first of the year. The schedule after Christmas reads as follows:

Jan. 6—Heidelberg at Tiffin
Jan. 7—Ohio Wesleyan at Delaware
Jan. 9—John Carroll at Dayton

FLYERS WIN FINALE

ON a snow-swept stadium gridiron with mid-winter temperatures prevailing Harry Baujan's Flyers ended their pigskin campaign in glorious fashion by winning the annual Thanksgiving Day game with Wittenberg by the score of 8 to 0.

The victory brought to an end a successful season for the Flyers, a season that included four victories, three defeats and two ties. Two major games, the tilts with Xavier and Wittenberg, were put on the right side of the ledger while another major opponent, John Carroll, was tied. The Flyers dropped three major engagements, losing to Ohio Wesleyan by the margin of a point after touchdown, to Oglethorpe by one touchdown, and to Boston College by a touchdown and a safety. Of the three minor opponents, Ohio Northern and Georgetown were defeated and Transylvania tied.

The Flyers went into the annual Turkey Day struggle the under-dogs, as the powerful Lutherans from Springfield had tied Washington and Jefferson and Oglethorpe, two of the ranking teams of the country, and had lost to Heidelberg, the outstanding eleven in the Buckeye State, by the narrow margin of 12-7. But Harry Baujan's boys proceeded to fool the experts by outplaying the Lutherans in every department of the game.

Early in the third quarter the Flyers, aided by Cabrinha's toe and a fast-charging line, continued to press their advantage and when Plummer, Lutheran halfback, was forced to punt from behind his own goal line, the Flyer forwards broke through to down him for a safety when he fumbled a low pass from center. Soon after Dayton drove from Wittenberg's 40 to the 22 where Cabrinha passed to Joe Colan for a touchdown.

Seven Flyer linemen played the entire game and their work on offense and defense left nothing to be desired.

In the backfield Joe Cabrinha played the entire game at quarter while at the halfback posts Tom Medley, Johnny Duchak, Harold Fearn, George Gorry and "Dan" Fitzsimmons saw action and each delivered nobly. Three fullbacks were used, the veteran "Jumpy" Marshall and the sophomores, Marty Schnur and "Whitey" Cramer. Marshall suffered an injury to his ankle early in the game and had to be assisted from the field. He was replaced by Schnur who, a few plays later, received a broken ankle. This left the assignment up to Cramer, an inexperienced sophomore, who delivered in great fashion.

AS the Alumnus goes to press Harry Baujan has scheduled seven games for the 1931 football team. Two open dates remain, October 9 and November 14. The October date will probably be filled by Georgetown, Ky., College, which appeared here the past season. The November 14 date lies between the University of Detroit, University of Indiana, Michigan State College and Loyola University of New Orleans. The schedule to date is as follows: September 25—Hanover, Ind., College (night game); October 3—Boston College at Boston; October 9—Wilmington College; October 16—John Carroll (night game); October 23—Butler (night game); October 31—Transylvania; November 7—Xavier at Cincinnati; November 14—Open; November 21—Permanently open; November 26—Wittenberg (Thanksgiving Day).

Brilliant 1930 Testimonial

Eclipsing in brilliance the first of these affairs, the second annual Testimonial Dinner Dance sponsored by the Alumni Association brought to a definite finish the 1930 football season for the Flyers.

The speaking program that was headed by R. E. "Dick" Hanley, head football coach at Northwestern University, and Francis J. Powers, '09, sports editor of the Consolidated Press and U of D alumnus, featured the dinner dance in honor of the U of D Flyers on December 10, 1930, at the Dayton Biltmore Hotel.

The Monogram Club, the "D" organization on the campus, took this occasion to present a wrist watch to Captain Joe Cabrinha as the most valuable player.

Dick Hanley, who piloted Northwestern to the co-championship of the Big Ten this past season, gave the principal address of the evening and told of his experiences at Haskell Institute, the Indian school where he made a name for himself before reaching the big time. He painted a very sympathetic picture of the red man. Hanley also praised Harry Baujan for the successful season he has waded through at Dayton and said that the Flyer teams that his Indians faced in 1925 and 1926 were as fundamentally sound on the basic as well as the fine points of football as any eleven he had ever come in contact with.

Francis Powers, one of the best known sport scribes in the Middle West, spoke briefly and humorously on how Harry Baujan happened to become a football coach at Dayton. It was Powers, then a member of the Athletic Board, who brought Baujan to Dayton in 1922.

Baujan congratulated the members of the 1930 squad and announced the awarding of letters.

Rev. Bernard P. O'Reilly, S.M., president of the University, said a few words, thanking the alumni and students for the manner in which they backed the team throughout the season and especially at the testimonial. Other speakers on the program included Robert M. Payne, president of the Dayton U of D Club, and Francis C. Canny, '09, who acted as toastmaster.

Dinner was served at 6:30 p.m. Dancing was enjoyed during and after the dinner until 1:00 a.m. Michael Hauer's eleven-piece radio and entertaining orchestra proved very popular with those in attendance.

As was the case last year this semi-formal affair was a huge athletic and social success.

Law Banquet Success

A law dinner honoring Father O'Reilly, president of the University, and Judge Robert C. Patterson, dean of the College of Law, was held Thursday night December 4 at the Van Cleve Hotel. Mason Douglass, common pleas judge-elect, and Byron B. Harlan, congressman-elect from this district, were the principal speakers of the evening.

Mason Douglass, in his talk on "Duties of a Law Student to the State," said that laymen and judges cannot reform the administration of justice and that lawyers alone can reform it. "Lawyers have the opportunity to bring back faith of the public in law," he said. "They can remind the public, also, that the judge cannot do in the courtroom what should have been done in the legislative chambers."

Byron B. Harlan spoke on the topic, "Duties of a Law Student to the Nation." He stressed the importance of problems before the world today, comparing them with gravity with those of our Revolutionary ancestors. "These problems are a challenge to the lawyers of today to rise to the occasion as our ancestors have done," he said.

Words of appreciation were spoken by Judge Patterson and Father O'Reilly. Impromptu talks were given by

U of D Treasurer's Golden Jubilee

A Jubilee Mass, celebrating the Golden Jubilee of Bro. John H. Lowekamp, S.M., treasurer at the University of Dayton, was sung Saturday morning December 13 at 8:30 o'clock in the chapel of the University by Very Rev.

Bernard P. O'Reilly, S.M., president of the University.

Rev. George J. Renneker, S.M., vice-president of the University, was deacon and Rev. Francis J. Friedel, S.M., director of spiritual activities, was sub-deacon.

A plenary indulgence to all who attended this Jubilee Mass under the usual conditions and who prayed for the intentions of the Pope had been acquired by Rev. August Frische, one of the Jubilarians of the Society of Mary, now chaplain at McBride High School, St. Louis, Mo.

All the students of the University of Dayton attended this Jubilee Mass.

Bro. John H. Lowekamp, S.M.

Very Rev. Joseph A. Tetzlaff, S.M., provincial of the Society of Mary in the eastern province of the United States, delivered a sermon during the Jubilee Mass.

Bro. John Lowekamp has enjoyed a remarkable record during the fifty years of service in the Society of Mary.

He was born in Baltimore, Md., on November 6, 1863. As a boy he attended Saint Alphonsus' Parish School, at that time in the hands of Christian Brothers. In 1872 the Society of Mary took over the school and it was then that Brother John decided to become a member of the Society.

He was only twelve years old when he went to study at the Postulate, preparatory to entering the Society of Mary. He taught for two years in the Postulate.

Brother John spent the longest period of his religious life in Cleveland. Here he was stationed as director of St. John's Cathedral School for twenty-two years, from 1882 until 1914. In 1914 Brother John became assistant treasurer at the University of Dayton. He was named treasurer in 1917 and has since that time ably carried the responsibilities which this office carries with it.

We extend our hearty congratulations to Brother John and we wish him the best of health and continued success in his endeavors.

Dr. Stephen A. Hosko, Walter S. McConaughy, and Robert Brumbaugh. Joseph B. Murphy acted as toastmaster.

Mrs. Robert Payne received the $25 in gold which was offered by John C. Shea, former dean of the College of Law, for excellency in the senior law class.

Entertainment was furnished by Carol Deis, Martha Payne, Jack Tourkow and Betty Schaeffer. Carol Deis, soprano, is the national winner of the Atwater Kent radio audition which was held at Washington, D. C. Martha Payne, Jack Tourkow and Betty Schaeffer offered several musical selections.

Sit Right Down

IF you knew how welcome a letter, a clipping or a marked newspaper about yourself is at this office, you would shake off that innate modesty which is a part of true culture and sit right down and write. You have no idea how many people will be interested in you, your family, your job, your political achievements, and everything that pertains to you. If you get married, or get married again; if you are appointed to any office from coroner to ambassador; if you get a good job, or lose a good job, no matter what it is, you'll find appreciation and sympathy in abundance among our readers.

This publication fails in its most important function if it fails to keep our alumni in touch with one another. Don't leave your affairs to our imagination.

ing to all. Within the course of the next month the entire Department will visit some of the manufacturing plants in Dayton and outlying districts. All members look forward to these trips as they afford an opportunity to link the practical with the theoretical.

BRO. WOHLLEBEN ADDRESSES SENIORS Recently Dr. William Wohlleben, S.M., head of the Chemistry Department at the University of Dayton, addressed the Senior Class at Chaminade High School. The purpose of Dr. Wohlleben's talk was not to encourage the boys to become chemical engineers but to acquaint them with the facts of college scholastic life.

After stressing the importance of a college education, Dr. Wohlleben pointed out the necessity of picking the right course to follow in college. He gave a brief outline of the requirements of the various college courses and their advantages. For those who wish to become engineers he emphasized the fact that they must be proficient in mathematics. He concluded by saying that all those who have the opportunity of following the arts course, regardless if their vocation be one of a more scientific trend, should do so.

Dr. Hosko to Prepare Report

Dr. Stephen A. Hosko, M. A., LL. D., Pol. Sc. D., professor of law and fine arts at the University of Dayton, has been invited by Rev. Joseph F. Thorning, S. J., chairman of the European committee of the Catholic Association for International Peace, to prepare a report on "Minorities in Europe."

It will contain an account of existing conditions among the minority nationalities in Europe at the present time.

"The question of 'Minorities in Europe' is an important one for consideration," Dr. Hosko said, "for it strikes at one of the principal causes of unrest in Europe."

"The question of how the Germans shall be handled in Poland, what political rights the Hungarians shall have in Yugoslavia and the other nations of central Europe, must be solved if there is to be any semblance of peace among these national minorities," he continued.

"In fact the present unrest and depression in the United States and other nations of the world at the present time is caused largely by this political unrest. Solving this problem will mean prosperity for our own nation once again," he concludes.

The report on "Minorities in Europe" is to be completed by April 1, 1931, according to present plans. It will be submitted to Father Thorning who is at Georgetown University in Washington, D. C.

SHOWING complete faith in the present coaching staff the Board of Athletic Control met on December 15 and voted to re-appoint Harry Baujan, Bill Belanich and Jack Keefer. Baujan was given a two-year contract as athletic director and head football coach. Belanich was also given a two-year contract as assistant football coach and head basketball mentor while Keefer, whose job is only a part-time one as backfield coach, was tendered a one-year contract.

Following the appointments the Athletic Board, through Bernard T. Schad, S.M., faculty advisor of athletics, gave the following statement: "The Athletic Board felt that the present coaching staff had given valuable service and had attained satisfactory results and that it was to the University of Dayton's advantage to maintain the present staff."

Bob Husted, veteran sports editor of the Dayton Herald and Sunday Journal, who is recognized as the leading sports authority in the Miami Valley, spoke at length on the re-appointments. Some excerpts from his article should prove interesting to the alumni, so we are giving them:

"The Athletic Board at the University of Dayton has expressed its confidence in the coaching regime of Harry Baujan by giving the Flyer director and mentor a contract for two more years.

"The Board acted wisely in tendering Baujan a two-year contract because such a move promptly indicates to the world at large that the powers that be are perfectly satisfied with Baujan and his assistants.

"Baujan has been at the University of Dayton long enough to thoroughly establish himself and his policies. Therefore, to have extended him another contract calling for but one year would have been nothing short of a confession on the part of the Board that it lacked confidence in his work and methods.

"That trend would have helped neither the school nor Baujan, so that is why we say the Board played their cards exactly right in giving him a two-year contract.

"Here at the University of Dayton the head coach is sitting in no ideal spot. The school is a member of the Ohio Conference but plays few conference football games, because a schedule arranged almost entirely with member schools of that body would appeal neither to the alumni nor others who make the turnstiles click at the stadium.

"Consequently, Baujan is forced to free lance his schedule. That is to say, book such games as will attract the fans in order that the other athletic programs at the University may be carried out. Football pays the athletic freight in every college, and it must show a profit on the right side of the ledger. If not, the bottom is sure to fall out of the competitive varsity sports.

"As a result the football charts as mapped at Dayton are not in great measure inclined to bring a wealth of victories during the course of a season.

"But a groundwork is being laid that in the future may bear the fruit that at the present is out of reach. Still, it is difficult for some of the over-ambitious alumni to be patient. The cry is for bigger and better victories, entirely forgetting that the road to any real accomplishment is generally full of pitfalls.

"Personally we believe that Baujan has covered far more of this hard trail than most people believe. Harry has made excellent contacts for the school. In the years that Baujan has been at the helm he has done much to bring about a closer friendship for Dayton with other schools athletically. You have only to attend a few conference meetings, where coaches and athletic directors gather, to learn that Baujan is well liked and his coaching ability respected.

"These men understand the task that Baujan has undertaken and appreciate more perhaps than anyone else what he has accomplished. And so, as we see it, Baujan's long term of service with the Flyers represents an investment on the part of the University that is paying dividends in friendship and good will for the school, assets that are more to be prized than victories, which are forgotten as soon as the season is over."
